SPEAKING TOPICS

Empowerment Begins with “U”

It focuses on us having a better understanding of ourselves and how our own actions or inactions play a part in the way that we are leading our lives.

Empowerment starts with seeing what we’re doing individually, what we’re letting affect us and how we can change that.

Understanding that we’re responsible for our actions and decisions. We can choose how to better engage in our daily life, both at work, at home and in the community.

Knowing that we are a part of something more. We are all a part of the “whole” that is humanity and we can make a difference, collectively and individually.

How can that idea productively impact decisions in the workplace and at home?

Dagmar can customize workshops and programs for your organization so that your team can achieve the next level of performance and productivity.
